

Jeffrey Heyl - Biography

Bass-baritone Jeffrey Heyl is from St. Louis where he makes his home with his wife Margret and their four children Samuel, Emily, Mary, and Christopher. Dr. Heyl holds degrees from the Eastman School of Music, the Hartt School of Music and the University of Iowa. He presently teaches voice and music literature at Lindenwood University, and voice at Urshan College and the Community Music School. He also is Director of Music & Worship at Green Trails United Methodist Church. Dr. Heyl has sung extensively and has appeared in opera, oratorio, recital, and music theatre, including Carmina Burana with Webster University and UMStl, Ein Deutches Requiem at UMStl and Missouri Baptist University, the Beethoven 9th Symphony & Songs of a Wayfayer with Robert Hart Baker and the St. Louis Philharmonic and the midwest premiere of Mark Hayes' Requiem with conductor Kevin McBeth. He has appeared with the St. Louis Symphony with conductors David Robertson, Nicholas McGegan, John Starguard and in Robert Kapilow's Summer Sun, Winter Moon where he sang the part of Raven with the composer conducting. In recent seasons he was bass soloist with the symphony in Beethoven's Mass in C, Nielsen's 3rd Symphony and Weill's Flight of Lindbergh.

[rev 2019]